

BAB V

CONCLUSIONS AND SUGGESTIONS

5.1. Conclusion

Indonesia's abundant cultural diversity, one of which is the culinary traditions from each region such as Banyuwangi's typical dishes is a heritage that should be preserved and maintained. However, the influence of globalization and technological developments has resulted in changes in the lifestyle and interests of the younger generation, especially Generation Z, who tend to be reluctant to learn and preserve traditional recipes. This has an impact on the preservation of many ancestral recipes. To overcome this, appropriate and affordable preservation media are needed, such as illustration books. Books certainly have various advantages compared to digital media, including not depending on the electricity grid, more freedom to read, and personal value. The existence of attractive illustrations makes the book not only interesting to the reader, but also easier to understand recipes and cooking steps. Through the survey results, the majority of respondents also expressed their interest in the use of illustration books as a medium for preserving Banyuwangi's culinary traditions. Therefore, the development of illustrated books about traditional cuisine is a choice of media that is considered relevant and appropriate in an effort to preserve local culture in the midst of modernization.

5.2. Suggestion

- a. This illustrated recipe book can include interesting facts or unique characteristics about Indonesian spices.
- b. This illustration book can also be loaded with information about the texture of dishes or tips on how to cook.
- c. It would be good to collaborate with the local government so that this book can be distributed evenly and can achieve its goal of preserving traditional culinary.